the Ninth District Election

The returns from Marinette county are vital to Kuestermann and a recount may be had.

GUARD PRISONER IN MADISON JAIL

Fearful University Professor Charged
With Sending Obscene Pictures
May Attempt Suicide.

Madison, Nov. 10.—Fear that Prof. William of the University of Wisconsin, who is in the Dane County Jail charged with sending obscene literature through the mails, will suicide, has prompted the authorities to keep a steady guard over the prisoner and allow him no visitors.

William was arrested after methods of the most lurid type had been used. Detectives who had been working on the case for several weeks used a decoy letter placed in the historical library at Madison in such a way that the watchers were certain they had their man when he touched it and released a key to a post office box and he was arrested when trying to open the box with the key he had received. William confessed to the authorities and in his home a large quantity of obscene literature was found as well as pictures. He said he first secured his taste for such writings while serving in the army. William has held important positions in various institutions of learning and was traveling lecturer for the University while studying for his Ph.D. degree.

JOSEPH ARCH IS IN EIGHTY-FIFTH YEAR

Noted English Labor Leader Receives
Many Congratulations at Home in Warwick.

London, Nov. 10.—At his home in Warwick, Joseph Arch, one of the pioneer leaders of organized labor in England, received many messages of congratulation today upon the birthday of his eighty-fifth year. He is a well known figure in the labor movement and has been a member of the House of Commons for many years.

A little over a decade ago Mr. Arch was numbered among the most prominent men in England, owing to the large part he has taken in labor agitation and in the amelioration of the condition of the English farm laborer. He first came into prominence in the early seventies by originating an agricultural laborers' union, which became one of the strongest labor organizations in the country and almost completely revolutionized the condition of the farm hand, who was then little more than a serf. Mr. Arch was born a farm laborer in Warwickshire. He married the daughter of a mechanic and was wont to spend his time reading books at his leisure while smoking his pipe. It was at his wife's suggestion that he studied. In this way he acquired some knowledge of logic, measurement and surveying. In 1872 he founded the National Agricultural Laborers' Union and was made its president. In this work he was greatly assisted by the late Samuel Morley, who freely contributed money to the cause. Mr. Arch traveled about the country and delivered lectures and addresses to the laborers. He was elected to the House of Commons in 1885 and continued to be a prominent member of that body for many years.

NEW BRIDGE OVER THE MISSISSIPPI

Largest Structure That Spans the River Dedicated at St. Louis with Imposing Ceremonies.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 10.—The new McKinley bridge spanning the Mississippi River was formally dedicated today with imposing ceremonies. Governor Bradley of Missouri and Governor Deneen of Illinois were the central figures in the exercises. The other participants included Mayor Krollman of St. Louis and the mayors of numerous cities on the Illinois side of the river and representatives of many commercial organizations. Speech-making, parades and fire works were features of the dedication program.

The new bridge was constructed at a cost of $3,000,000 by the McKinley traction interests, controlling large interurban railway lines throughout this section. The structure commands attention not only because of the enormous outlay required to bridge the Mississippi River, but because it is also of great importance from the traffic standpoint.
Trade and travel between St. Louis and the great industrial districts on the other side of the river have been handicapped for many years by the so-called bridge monopoly. In 1906 the people voted almost unanimously in favor of an issue of $5,000,000 bonds to erect a municipal bridge. The designs were made and accepted by the committee in charge, but Congressmen W. B. McKinley and his associates of the Illinois Traction Company anticipated the city officials and broke the monopoly by constructing the great bridge which had its formal opening today.

The franchise by which the Illinois Traction Company was permitted to build the bridge and its double-track entrance into the heart of the St. Louis business district, thus making it possible through interurban service and electric freight and express service, does not permit of any arbitrary charge for bridge traffic. The direct revenue from the bridge, therefore, must come from the five-cent fares of the local street car service and the interurban fares based on two cents a mile. Some additional revenue, of course, will be received from the tolls charged foot passengers and team traffic moving over the roadway at either side of the electric tracks.

The new bridge is by far the most important and expensive single engineering undertaking of its kind built by an interurban electric railway company. The structure is one mile long and the largest on the Mississippi River, having a carrying capacity of 5,000 pounds to the foot, while that of its neighbors, the Merchants' bridge, which is used by a number of steam railroad companies, is 2,800 pounds to the foot. There is a double railway track and a double wagon driveway on each side. It stands between the two old bridges, three-quarters of a mile south of the Merchants' bridge. The bridge proper consists of three 500-foot spans, seventy-five feet above high water, and the supports are eighty-two feet above the floor. The piers rest upon bed-rock seventy feet below the water.
The bridge was designed by Ralph Modjeska, who supervised its construction, leaving all records. Modjeska is a son of the famous Polish actress, and designed the great bridge over the St. Lawrence at Quebec, which will cost $15,000,000.

LINK AND PIN.
NORTHWESTERN TOOK MANY RAILROADS

Branch Lines Built and Absorbed in Carrying Out Policy in Complete System.

During the fiscal year ended June 30 the Chicago & Northwestern Railway company organized six new roads with the ultimate idea of taking them over entirely. Since the end of that period three of them have been absorbed and it is only a question of completion before the others will become an integral part of the parent system. For the most part, the new lines are branches and bear out the established policy of the Northwestern to confine all extensions to the Northwest for the purpose of its complete development.

Lines that were organized during 1910 are as follows: Lee County railway, Belle Fourche Valley railway, James River Valley and Northwest, Sioux City, Dakota & Northwestern, Des Moines Valley railway company and Milwaukee, Sparta & Northwestern. Since the close of the year the Belle Fourche Valley, the Lee County Railway company and the Sioux City, Dakota & Northwestern have been bought over.

Built For Special Purpose.

Each road was built for a special purpose. The Lee County railway, a double track line from Nelsburg to Nelson, Ill., a distance of 12.74 miles, affords a material saving in grades and curves and provides an important addition to the company's track facilities between Chicago and the Mississippi river.

The Belle Fourche Valley Railway company was organized to construct a railway eastward from a connection with the Chicago & Northwestern at Belle Fourche S. D., through the counties of Butte and Meade, for a distance of eighty-eight miles. That portion of the railway extending from Belle Fourche to a point near the townsite established in Butte county by the United States government with its reclamation project, a distance of 23.52 miles, is now being operated.

With the idea of constructing a railroad from Gottsburg, S. D., to Blunt, S. D., and from Onida to Hitchcock, S. D., in all covering a distance of about 130 miles, the James River & Northwestern was organized. Construction of the Sioux City, Dakota & Northwestern is well advanced.

Traffic Agreement Made.

An agreement has been entered into between the Illinois Central and the Northwestern, providing for perpetual trackage rights over the main line of the Illinois Central between St. Louis City and Elkhart, a distance of 12.72 miles.

The Des Moines Valley railway will directly connect the several divisions of the Northwestern entering Chicago with the proposed, unopened terminal yards at Proviso, and enable the company to effect important economies in the diversion and distribution of the traffic now passing through the terminals within that city.

A direct route from Milwaukee to connections with the Chicago, Minneapolis & Omaha at Weymouth, Wis., and with the Madison division of the Chicago & Northwestern at Sparta will be afforded by the Milwaukee, Sparta & Northwestern. With the construction of this line a large volume of traffic now passing over existing routes and heavy grades via Madison and Elroy may be economically diverted.

This road will also provide a double track belt line around Milwaukee, which will afford relief from the congestion of the terminals within that city. All through traffic may be diverted to the belt line and a considerable portion of the local traffic distributed at its terminal yards.

Chicago & Northwestern.

PULL OFF TWO TRAINS ON THE NORTHWESTERN LINE.

Train 513 Will Start from Janesville Instead of Chicago and No. 518 Will Not Go Through to Chicago.

Commencing next Sunday, November 13, a change in the running of two passenger trains on the Northwestern road will be in effect, whereby Train No. 513 arriving from Elroy at 4:20 in the morning will run only as far as Janesville, the run to Chicago being discontinued, and Train No. 518 Chicago to Elroy via Beloit and Janesville, will start from Janesville at the regular time 4:20 p. m., by cutting off the runs in this manner it may be possible to use the same crews for both. The run may be discontinued temporarily, as was done before, by shortening it gradually and finally putting it off.

NOT ENTHUSIASTIC BUT DON'T CONDEMN

Several Bankers of Indiana and Iowa Have Replied to Inquiries on Tax Ferret Proposition.

City Attorney H. L. Maxwell has received eight replies to the eighteen letters which he sent to the state tax commissioners, secretaries of bankers' associations, and bankers in Indiana, Illinois, and Iowa, asking how the employment of tax ferrets worked out in actual practice.

J. E. Emery, cashier of the First National bank at Huntington, Indiana, writes that he doesn't believe the tax experts should have been paid 20 per cent as they were in his district; that in his opinion it was all work that ought to have been done by the assessors; that he cannot say that it hurt the business in his locality, "although there was lots of kidding."

A. B. McCormick, cashier of the First National bank at Terre Haute, writes in substance as follows: "Tax ferrets were used here some time ago with good results. There was no business disturbance. Just one man removed his residence."

The president of a bank at Kokomo, Ind., says under seal of confidence that the scheme was a bad one and that the estates of people of small means constituted the greater proportion of the "prey."

A. H. Davidson, secretary of the executive council of Iowa, writes from Des Moines quite a lengthy explanation of the deplorable system or lack of system in the taxation of real property in Iowa. The inference he draws from his letter is that the ferreting plan would work out well if the owners of tangible property were paying taxes on anything approximating real valuations.

The objection has been urged that the county and state would have an interest in the delinquent taxes collected and should be compelled before a contract is closed with Workman & Higgs. The city attorney does not believe that the state and county have any interest in the matter as their definite quota of taxes is collected here in any event, regardless of valuations returned by local assessors.

The tentative contract he has drawn up stipulates that the firm shall assist in gathering evidence; not by the actual collection of taxes, and the Janesville official believes that such a contract will stand any test in the courts.

It is understood that aside from the general opposition to the project of employing the methods suggested to collect taxes, a special committee of business men have taken the matter in hand and have presented their views to city officials which may cause a reconsideration of the question at the next meeting of the council.

In fact, such strong pressure is being brought to bear upon individual adherents by prominent business men that it is almost certain Janesville will not take the initiative in the matter, but will wait until it has been tried out in some other city where the results can be closely watched.

Mongolian Pheasant: Hugh McCaffrey who returned ten days ago from a visit in New York state, brought with him two handsome Mongolian pheasants that had been shot near Charlotte, N. Y. While these birds are protected by law the hunters are allowed to shoot three each year but after this fall can not shoot them again until 1911. There are several covets of these birds in Wisconsin, protected by law, one large one being on the Bingham farm at Lake Koshkonong.

Connors' Vaudeville Theatre.

Real cleverness, not the glamourous attempt at it, which at first glance, may pass for the original, is a trait which but comparatively few possess, although it is one that is much admired and sought after. In no place is cleverness more requisite to win public favor than in the amusement world and it takes an actor that is really clever to come up to the standard. Combined with cleverness must be training and such a combination is found in the Klint brothers, comedy clown acrobats who are to be seen at Connors' theatre the rest of this week. While one minute they may have you gasping with wonder at their marvelous tumbling feats, the next second you will almost split your sides laughing at their jokes. Their work is well liked and is known over a large section of the country, their act being recognized for its merits.

Mrs. Charles Hughes.
Mrs. Hughes' First Photograph in Eight Years.

Washington, D. C.—Here is the first photograph Mrs. Charles E. Hughes has had taken in eight years. Mrs. Hughes has been a sympathetic helpmate to the former governor of New York, now associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, and has watched his rise with loving pride. She attended several sessions of the Armstrong committee's insurance investigation, which was Justice Hughes' first stepping stone to his present height.

Mrs. Hughes is tall and slender, with regular features, wavy dark-brown hair and large brown eyes. Her manner is dignified but full of charm. As she has said often, "I am not a bit sensitive about my age." It may be stated that she is 46. She was Antoinette Carter, daughter of the late Walter S. Carter, senior member of the law firm of which her husband was the junior.

Mrs. Hughes studied three years at Wells college and two years as a special student at Wellesley college. She is a daughter of the American Revolution and a member of the New York Colonial club and of the New York Society of Mayflower descendants.

Mrs. Hughes has blessed her husband with four children—Charles E. Hughes, Jr., the Misses Helen and Katherine Hughes and a small Miss Hughes born in 1907, the only baby that ever first saw the light in the executive mansion in Albany.

Justice Hughes occupies a handsome house on Massachusetts avenue, Washington, where his wife, a member of the highest circle of official society, can display her accustomed hospitality.

AFTER THE BATTLE.

The American people have spoken in a voice of protest as the voice of one man, against the dangerous doctrine of insurrection, and disloyalty, so badly tainted with socialism. Party lines were ignored and the independent, thoughtful voter, alive to the situation, stepped into the breach and stayed the tide which threatened to engulf the nation.

The magazine press, as well as metropolitan papers like the Chicago Tribune, is responsible in large degree for the spirit of unrest which culminated in this disaster, for many of the doctrines advanced have been destructive and revolutionary. Posing as great reformers, with a handful of agitators, they have kept the public mind in a frenzy through an era of national prosperity unrivaled in history.

The Inter Ocean of yesterday had an editorial on the situation which contains so much of food for sober second thought, that it is worth reproducing. The paper says in part: "The first fruits of the insurrection in the republican party are clear, at last, to everybody. This morning they are spread across the front page of every newspaper in the United States. What are they?"

"A democratic house of representatives, a democratic governor of New York, a democratic governor and candidate for the presidency in Ohio, a beaten and disgraced republican candidate for senator in Indiana, and so on and so on through a list of republican disasters too long and too sickening to be reviewed or even enumerated."

"That is the story of the insurrection of the republican party up to date. Nothing redeemed, nothing reformed, nothing helped, not even a preparation to reform, redeem or help!"

"Not a single wrong redressed or a preliminary step taken to redress any wrong! Confusion, destruction, consternation and defeat—that is the insurrection record up to this date and it is published to the world from every city and village in the United States today."

"What a collapse! Where is its like in the recent history of American politics? The Roosevelt, Norwicks, Garfields, Pinchots, Cummings, La Follette and Hristows have done their work, and a fine piece of work it is! Compared with it the destruction wrought in the democratic party by the Bryans, Watsons, Coxes, Harveys and Hearsts is as a bonfire to a volcano.

"Coming as it did upon the party that has done the greatest work of all the parties in American history, the achievement of Mr. Roosevelt and his associates is absolutely tragic."

"Think of what the structure of the republican party was when these gentlemen were called within its doors, offered its hospitality and clothed with its greatest honors! Then think of what it is today."

"Probably not once in the campaigns of the last ten years has it crossed the mind of a single insurgent leader what would happen if he should succeed in even the first, the destructive stage of his career. We do not suppose that a single foresighted thought of the future has once fluttered through the mind of Theodore Roosevelt or Robert La Follette."

"Of the rest, it is certain that they never looked a day beyond the hurrah or handclap of the moment. Nevertheless, Cummins, Hristow and their kind have thought only from hour to hour. How unprepared such shallow brutes are for any test of fortune has been already illustrated. Those who heard Senator Cummins plead in Chicago for harmony at any cost and at any sacrifice of principle do not need to be told how weakly and impotently those frownyed plungers flinch from the first sober sight of the consequences of their own acts."

"Roosevelt and La Follette alone had and have the brains to consider what might come after the deluge, but in their boundless optimism, we believe, neither one paused to take a statesman's glance or a patriot's care for the future."

"So here we are today with a colossal party organization—a great engine of government, an enormous edifice of party politics, an absolutely indispensable shelter of popular constitutional government—laid in wreck and ruin before our eyes and with the sad, arduous and painful duty forced upon the sober men of its membership to seek to repair through months and years the evil wrought by the three brands of insurrection and socialism."

"This may seem like a scathing denunciation, but responsibility should be placed where it belongs. Theodore Roosevelt was one of the best Presidents that the nation ever had, and under his vigorous management the standard of business morality was elevated."

"When he left the White House he was recognized as the greatest American living, and when he returned from Africa he was the world's hero, but when he joined the ranks of insurgency, and silently ignored the man whom he selected to succeed himself in office and later openly opposed him by defeating his colleague, the Vice President, in the Senate convention, public order cooled, and has since become frigid."

"His progressive leadership inspired hope and new courage, in the minds of insurgents, and they followed him to defeat and party destruction. They got rid of Cannonism and Aldrichism, by dealing republicanism a body blow from which it will not speedily recover."

"Senator Cummins of Iowa realized the danger when it was too late, and the rest of the bunch will have a chance to repeat at their leisure."

"The business and commercial world has spoken in no uncertain terms, and given the patriots and would-be statesmen to understand that it prefers to take chances with democracy in spite of its unsavory record, rather than to longer submit to interference and regulation of everything in sight."

FREE ADVERTISING.

Never in the history of American journalism have newspaper offices been so flooded with material for editing a paper with a pair of shears. The mass of stuff which piles up day after day from news bureaus and press syndicates would crowd the columns to the exclusion of everything else, and with rare exception some advertising scheme is carefully concealed.

"There are exceptions of course, as some of the work exploited is purely philanthropic, as will be seen by the following notices which recently came in a single mail."

"The first calls attention to the Moody Bible Institute which holds its fourteenth annual session at the Moody church in Chicago on the 12th inst., with an interesting program."

"The second is the dedication of the Martha Washington Home under the auspices of the Milwaukee House of Mercy, which takes place Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 15th. This home has been built for the shelter and protection of homeless and friendless women and girls who desire to lead a right life. They can come without money and without price. This home was established seventeen years ago and has cared for 1,500 girls, a most worthy philanthropy and entitled to cordial support."

"The third announces a Model Old Folks' Home on a farm six miles out of Madison, the gift of the late John A. Johnson. This home is provided with every comfort, has accommodation for twenty, and by depositing $1,000 any worthy aged person will be admitted and cared for through life."

"These are only three of a large number of announcements sent out by organizations seeking publicity, and this is only one of many demands which publishers are expected to meet."

plug, because he thought you might need something to 'help fill up the paper.'"

The city of San Francisco is having a spasm, because every paper in the land is not helping to boost the Panama Canal exposition in 1915.

Every railroad in the land supports a news bureau, and the salary of the management depends upon the amount of free publicity secured.

The blue pencil and the waste basket were never more in demand in the newspaper office than they are today.

Reading, Pa., Nov. 9.—"I don't expect I will be able to accomplish very much, but I mean to raise the devil," declared James H. Maurer of this city, who was elected to the legislature by the socialist party of this city yesterday. Maurer is the first socialist to be elected to the legislature. He is a plumber by trade and he was at work this morning as usual. This man represents the party which expects to run the government in the not distant future.

For the first time in recent history the name of Colonel Roosevelt did not figure as the most prominent character on the stage, yesterday. He voted at ten o'clock Tuesday morning and then went home to rest, and is still in retirement, refusing to be interviewed. The experience is so novel that it attracts attention. The "whipped to a frazzle" seems to be on the other foot.

President Taft deserves better treatment than he has received at the hands of his party, but he is no longer overvalued and the people may yet discover that he is President.

The good people of Illinois seem to be bad—very bad. They re-elected Browne and his colleagues, and paved the way for the Chicago Tribune to continue its crusade of purification.

The election of Judge Loyd H. Hancock was a wholesome rebuke to the state central committee and the man who dictated its policy.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

THE GOOD SAMARITANS.

This is a true story about a Presbyterian, a Catholic, a Methodist and a Jew.

It happened in the city of Des Moines, Ia.

The Presbyterian, an old man, after a few days of illness died.

His next door neighbor on one side was a Hebrew, on the other side a member of the Methodist church, and the neighbor the second door away a Catholic.

During his illness these neighbors took turns about caring for the old gentleman, whose wife was a semi-invalid.

There was no help in the household save that rendered alternately by the Jew, the Catholic and the Methodist, for this story did not occur in "the best part" of the city. All the parties were comparatively poor.

When the old man was dying there was neither minister nor priest at the bedside, and the broken hearted old wife asked if some one could not offer a prayer.

Reverently the Methodist repeated the Lord's Prayer, and the others joined.

Together the Methodist and Catholic and Jew prepared the body for burial and made all the arrangements for the interment.

By request of the wife a Presbyterian minister was present at the funeral and read the burial service.

There was but one relative of the dead—a daughter living in Chicago—and the funeral cortege consisted only of the daughter and the families of the Catholic, the Methodist and the Jew.

Moreover—

These three neighbors are taking the same care of the old wife—through their wives—that they gave the husband. And when it was suggested that the invalid wife go to the poor farm the three families protested and said if necessary they would take her to one of their homes.

And daily little delicacies such as these families can spare from a rather meager store are carried to the old wife.

That's all.

Only this—twenty-five years ago such an incident could scarcely have happened.

And the moral? Why, the moral is on the surface of the story. You can make your own application.

You can say the world is surely growing tolerant and charitable and kind, or you can say that such an incident could take place only among the poor, or—

The story alone is good enough without any preaching.

Helps to Happiness.

The tireless cooker, the voiceless hog, the tireless bird man, the crackling windmill, the houseless poultry house and the ruthless road would add much to the enjoyment of farm life.

Uncle Walt

THE POET PHILOSOPHER

By WALT MASON.

(Copyright, 1903, by George Matthew Adams.)

"Mary had a little lamb, its fleece was white as wool, and sundry statesmen held her up, in 1847 to Wisconsin, locating here, its studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1856 and the year following went to Kansas to live. He has since resided there and besides his law practice built up a considerable real estate business. He occupied many positions of honor and trust in Kansas, and was one of the best known jurists in the state. A wife and four daughters survive him."

MARY'S LAMB hard by the village school. "Your little lamb," the statesman said, "you soon will have to shear, and then the woolen garments will sew you up, my dear. They have the tariff doctored up in such a beastly way that little hands with wool to sell can get but little pay. They rob consumers on the left, producers on the right; and little girls with little hands are in a fearful plight. And when your lamb is nice and fat, and all for butcher's stall, the meat trust reaches forth its claws, and takes it, blind and all. The meat trust, backed by tariff laws that are the nation's shame, is on the trail of it. Go home, go home, dear little maid, and take your lamb along, and tell your pa to seek the polls, and fight a grievous wrong. If he will cast his vote for us, we'll guard your lovely sheep, and never more in all the world shall little maidens weep." Thus Mary leaped upon her lamb, and gave a mighty yell, and galloped to the body butcher, and took a peddled cell.

Good Rules to Observe.

"When in haste, go slow; when excited, keep cool," are two fundamental rules by which most women who so frequently have occasion to be "on edge" and "all upset" can spare their nerves and indirectly their pocket-books. Impulsively letting your nerves and emotions give way before you have time to think is a habit that can only be controlled by a call on reason and common-sense.

Twelve Days in Well.

After straddling a pole thirty feet below the surface of the earth and within three feet of right feet of water for twelve days in an old, unused well near Bagley, in Johnson county, N. C., a young German was found still alive and in the act of eating a frog. The young chap was on his way out to Bagley when he met two men, Chas. Greer and Doc Jones, who were apparently intoxicated. They threatened the German, who thoroughly frightened, took to his heels. For ten days a search had been made for the missing man, and Greer and Jones were about to be arrested for his supposed murder. A searching party carefully looked down the well as they were passing by it and discovered the man, who had been there twelve days. He had fallen into the well and lodged on the cross pole.

Episodes pictured were: First, the return of Henry V. and his army after the battle of Agincourt; second, Sir John Falstaff and his companions leaving the Boar's Head, East Cheap; third, Richard, duke of Gloucester, conducting King Edward V. and the young duke of York to the tower; fourth, King Henry VIII. and Cardinal Wolsey going to the papal inquiry concerning Queen Katherine at Blackfriars.

ENTRANTS IN SAVANNAH "GRAND PRIZE" RACE.

Prize race. Upper right, Wagner and his Fiat car in which he will contend for honors in the "Grand Prize" race. Lower left, Brown and his Benz entry.

Savannah, Ga.—With the grandstands completely filled, the plans for the accommodation of record-breaking crowds at the grand prize automobile and international light car races on November 11 and 12 are about completed. The grand prize course, shortened and straightened, and with several of the more dangerous turns eliminated, has been turned over to the drivers for practice. The course is superior in every way to the course over which the grand prize race was run two years ago.

In the meantime people are purchasing seats that have not yet been built, so eager are they to secure places of vantage from which to view the great spectacle. It is predicted that this race will eclipse the former Grand Prize race, which established the reputation of Savannah as the place for excellence for the racing game. The grandstand will be built to accommodate 20,000 people which will be but a small percentage of those who will witness the race. The course will be practically impassable for a fowl to cross the course while the race is in progress. There will be an utter lack of the spectacle of people crowding upon the course as was the case during the Vanderbilt race in New York. Both in size and convenience the monster stands go ahead of anything ever seen at the side of a finish stretch of a road race in America. For the first time in the history of road racing the spectators on the stands will be able to see the work of the drivers on two stretches and on a turn. There is no more thrilling part of a plant racing thing than how over thrilling may be the great rush of the monster machines as they go by the stands on a straightaway.

The skill and nerve of the drivers on the turns, the uncertainty of their efforts to clip a fraction of a second off the lap by taking the turn at maximum speed, makes the turn the supreme test of skill. The turns are the wrenching strain on the firm makes them give way, where a ton of metal, controlled with a finesse that takes years to acquire, changes its bounding course with hardly a perceptible slackening of momentum and again plunges on towards the goal.

There are more than 20 entries in the Grand Prize event, including the most famous racing men in this country and in Europe. The majority of those who were entered for the race on the Long Island course when that course was abandoned following the inability of the managers to provide suitable protection against the spectators, brought their machines straight to Savannah after the Savannah Automobile club had succeeded in securing the race. Other entries are being added daily. All of the best known racing models will be represented.

Another "Wall Street Special" is to bring the millions from the metropolis. This train will be run in two sections to accommodate the large number of people who have made reservations. The guests on the special will live on the train during their stay in Savannah. The hotels are already taxed by those seeking reservations, and the boarding houses are making preparations to entertain record-breaking crowds. The race at this stage bids fair to eclipse anything of the kind ever held in this country.

TELL OF TRIP TO NORTH POLE

STORY OF ESKIMOS WHO ACCOMPANIED PEARY REACHES COPENHAGEN.

RASMUSSEN SENDS REPORT

Men Tell of Explorer's Moment of Triumph When Goal Was Attained—Declare Weather and Ice Made Extended Journeys Possible.

Copenhagen, Nov. 10.—Knut Rasmussen has forwarded from Greenland the story told of their trip poleward by the Eskimos who were with Commander Peary last year.

This story, which tallies with that of the explorer, is as follows in the words of the Eskimo Ukjuk:

"Leaving the ship (Roosvelt) we traveled north in the months of February and March. Before the departure many sledges were sent ahead, three at a time, with food for men and dogs. Peary traveled with Kildigluk and Arkiak. After five nights the depot supply sledges returned.

Good Weather All the Time.

"During the whole trip we had fine weather. When only three days' journey from land we were delayed by open water. Well over this, we had no delay on the whole route; ahead the ice was splendid. After leaving Capt. Bartlett we did five days' journey. Before separating from Captain Bartlett Peary had taken several observations. Now since we were alone he took observations often when the tent was pitched. We still had food for men and dogs.

"We were so far north that the sun, however late at night, stood high in the sky, moving in a circle, without going up or going down. Finally Peary ordered a halt and thereupon he himself, with two men, continued the journey, but returned the same day, having done the forward and backward journey without rest. At last, said Peary to us, 'I have reached what I wanted.' At this place we slept two nights. Peary was very much engaged with observations and the last night he did not sleep at all.

Long Journeys Every Day.

"On the way home we had fine weather without any fog. How long the days' journeys on the outward and homeward journeys were we do not know. The fine easy ice made very long journeys possible every day. On the whole trip home we had only one day's rest. That was when we reached land. Now, Peary was in a great hurry. Together with me and Iganguak he hurried ahead to the ship, with only one night's rest. We and our companions slept two nights. Later on, after we had reached the ship, we had an eclipse of the sun.

"We did not notice Peary's happiness at the pole, but after the arrival at the ship he arranged a festival for the Americans and for us Eskimos. This is all we, Iganguak and Ukjuk, have to tell about the journey with Peary."

Considered the Final Blow.

Rasmussen's report from the Eskimos of Cook's party and those of Peary's party has made a strong impression here, where many still believed that the Eskimos would rehabilitate Dr. Cook in the confidence of the public. The National Tidende says that their story means the final rejection of the doctor's claim that he reached the north pole. The newspaper adds that the story told by Commander Peary's Eskimos gives valuable support to his own narrative.

NEW YORK SOCIALISTS GAIN.

Cast 65,000 Votes for Charles Edward Russell for Governor.

New York, Nov. 10.—Marked gains in the Socialist vote throughout the state are shown in the election returns. Figures available indicate a total vote for Charles Edward Russell, nominee for governor, of 65,000, which is nearly double the 33,994 vote of 1908. In New York city Russell received 27,330.

Most significant, however, are the increases upstate. Sixty-five cities that gave a vote of 7,850 two years ago show 28,000 this year. In the outlying districts the gains are especially notable. Districts which formerly showed less than 100 votes this year report from 100 to 500.

Among the large cities that show substantial Socialist gains are Buffalo, Schenectady, Syracuse and Rochester. In some instances the increases are as high as 500 per cent.

PATIENT SHOTS HIS DOCTOR.

Wounds Physician Then Turns Gun on Himself and Dies.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Dr. J. Hollinger, an ear, nose and throat specialist, was shot three times in his office by a former patient, Louis Martin. Martin then directed the revolver at his own forehead and pulled the trigger, dying instantly.

Doctor Hollinger's injuries are not necessarily fatal, although one of the bullets passed through his nose, another lodged in his arm and the third in his leg.

The cause of the shooting is not known to the police. Martin underwent an operation at the hands of Doctor Hollinger.

TO DIE FOR PLOT ON MIKADO.

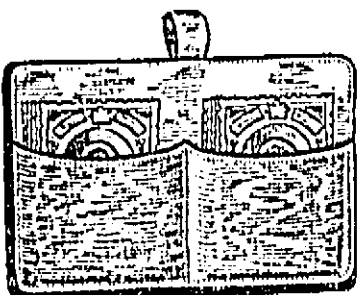

Court Recommends Extreme Penalty for Twenty-Six in Japan.

Tokyo, Japan, Nov. 10.—The finding of the special court organized to try the plotters against the life of the emperor was announced. Twenty-six persons were found guilty, including the ringleaders, Kotoku, and one woman, the wife of Kotoku.

FOR THE MERE MAN.

When in Doubt Make Him a Pocket Stamp Case.

The stamp case for carrying in the waistcoat pocket will prove an acceptable little present for a man and should be made in two pieces, the upper portion holding the stamps being slightly smaller in size than the other part of the case, into which it may be slipped. The case can be made from any small remnants of silk, and when complete it should measure not more than two inches by one and a half. The back portion of each part should be stiffened with a piece of thin cardboard, and an ordinary visiting card cut to the size required will answer the purpose very well. A small loop of narrow ribbon is sewed in the center of the upper part of the case by which it may be pulled from the lower part when a stamp is required. The sketch so clearly shows the nature of this little article that further description is scarcely necessary.

A Lawyer's Bag.

One hour it at every turn, "Men are so difficult to buy for." And it is the Christmas present for Bob, Jack or Tom that some devoted woman is hunting. If she were just once to get away from the idea of "trivials" the road would be straighter and she might walk right up to the very thing she seeks—for instance, a lawyer's bag made of dark bottle green kersey cloth, exactly the size of the old one, unless there has been complaint of its awkward proportions.

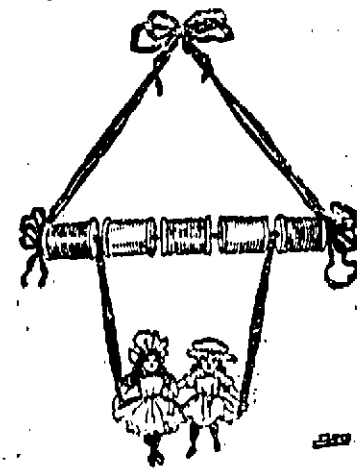

These bags usually are drawn up with mohair braid, two strings of it, and the ends sewed together by a flat lapping process, admitting of easy pulling open and shut. Neither bows nor knots are allowable, and in order to insure the easy working of this convenient gift the casing must be of generous width.

A Happy Suggestion.

There never was a man who didn't enjoy having a match scratcher handy when he wanted to light his pipe. Take a heavy card 7 by 9 inches, either white or cream, and glid the edge by putting on gold paint in little irregular splashes; also glid a clay pipe to hold matches, the diagonally across the center of card by punching two holes close to the bowl, one each side of the stem and again near the end of stem, run ribbon through and tie in bow. Cut large heart from sandpaper, glid and paste to lower corner. In the upper corner letter with gold paint, "A Striking Proof of My Affection." Make two holes at center of top, run ribbon through and tie in a bow on the right side.

He'll Find It Useful.

A pretty worker's companion either for a man or a woman is made in the following manner: Take a skewer or an old knitting needle (a wooden one) and put a few spoons of cotton on it.

HANGING SPOOL HOLDER.

Tie a bow of ribbon on each end. Then make a long loop of ribbon with another bow at the top. After the first spool at each end of the skewer attach a ribbon to hang down. Two small dolls are then seated on this novel swing and are dressed very prettily, to be used as pincushions.

A Brush of Velvet.

For the wearer of the silk hat, whether he be father or grandfather, there may be made by one of the little ones at home a soft pillow of plush.

Plush will make a better hat smoother than velvet and, whether it be of soft blue, of gliding scarlet, of vivid purple or merely a quiet gray, will depend on father's taste on his previous expressions as to color. Some men want the brightest, others the duldest tones possible, but few of them want those shades that lie between.

When finished the plush pad will measure three inches by six, and it is filled with cotton to a desirable softness and pliability, but not stuffed.

German Proverb.

By three things we learn men—love, play and wine.

CUSTER DIED BY OWN HAND

Robert Jackson, Old Indian Scout and Guide, Claims Great Fighter Shot Himself.

That General Custer, the hero of Custer's massacre, believed to have been scalped and killed by the Sioux on the battlefield, was not murdered by the Indians, but died as the result of a gunshot wound fired by his own hand, is the somewhat startling addition offered to history by Robert Jackson of Costilla, Taos county, New Mexico.

Jackson was for nine and a half years a scout and guide for the United States soldiers, his service beginning in 1874 and ending in 1883. Jackson served under General Oles, General Reno, Colonel Hentzen, General Miles, General Custer and General Hazen.

At the time of the battle in which General Custer met his death Jackson was serving on the Sixth United States Infantry carrying dispatches to General Oles, then in command of the Placed a Gun to His Head and Fired.

Twenty-second infantry. Jackson was with the first company to reach the battlefield after the massacre and gives in detail the scene as it presented itself to him. Jackson says that an examination of Custer's body showed that the wound which caused his death was fired at close range, the powder burns indicating plainly that the pistol was held against the head. Jackson was commanded by General Hentzen to talk with the Indians after they had been subdued by the United States troops in the hopes of finding out how Custer was killed. The Indians told Jackson that General Custer was the last man to fall in battle. They wanted to take him alive, believing that with him as a prisoner they could force the government to terms. Realizing this fact, Jackson says the Indians told him that "Custer placed a gun to his head and fired."

According to Jackson the Indians all loved Custer and called him "The Long Haired Chief."

Jackson is a picturesque character and although he was in long and dangerous service he was not receiving a pension from the government, because he was not a regularly enlisted soldier. Friends in Taos county are interested themselves in his behalf and hope to receive aid for him from the government to compensate him for valuable services rendered.

Jackson acted as a scout for General Oles when he went to the relief of General Miles, then being on a detail along the Yellowstone river. Jackson also scouted for General Miles when he was running down Lamo Deer and his band. Jackson shot and killed Lamo Deer, scalped him and afterwards gave the scalp to General Miles.

After the Indians had been driven into Canada, Jackson acted as a guide when General Miles burned over a large territory along the northern boundary of the United States and drove south the buffalo so that the Indians were forced to surrender the following winter.

Find Letter From General Grant.

The Historical association of Los Angeles is to be presented with a number of interesting documents recovered from an outlaw's hut, among them a letter written by Gen. U. S. Grant during the siege of Vicksburg.

The Grant letter was addressed to Gen. Parks and conveyed orders relative to operations in front of the Confederate stronghold. The other papers are supposed to have been stolen from Gen. Manuel Garcia of the Mexican army.

That the documents had been secreted in the hotel for many years was shown by their condition and by the further fact that the hut, a dilapidated old abode near Ferris, was abandoned when the railroad supplanted the stage line on the run between Los Angeles and San Diego.

$190,000 FOR A BED

Top Price Paid by Stephen Marchand for Bedstead.

Massive Piece of Ebony Bought by American—Carvings Alone Cost $64,000—Masonic Affair in French Collection.

London.—Nowadays bedsteads are comparatively cheap, and $100 is considered a big price for even a rich man to spend on a couch whereon he may pass away in comfort his sleeping hours.

Occasionally, however, a millionaire will spend a few hundreds or thousands of pounds on the furnishing of his bedchamber and he will not be satisfied unless the bedstead equals in splendor the bedsteads to be found in the world's royal palaces.

Stephen Marchand, an American of vast wealth, made up his mind to possess the most expensively fitted bedchamber in the two hemispheres, and with this purpose in view he spent not less than $100,000 on a bedstead alone. It was constructed of massive ebony, with elaborate carvings of solid ivory and inlaid with gold filigree. At the head of the bedstead was a huge trophy cut from one solid piece of ivory. A special journey was taken to Africa to obtain a massive tusk for the purpose.

The bedstead was made by a large firm in Paris and it occupied the finest artisans of France for over two years before it was completed. The hangings were of a special purple damask, costing nearly $25 a yard.

Mr. Marchand's bedchamber, which was of elliptical form and measured 76 feet by 22 feet, had its wall paneled with elaborately carved enrichments in the style of Louis XV., costing no less a sum than $64,000. The ceiling of this apartment was carved and decorated by Parisian artists who were paid $19,350.

A rich London lady, a year or two ago, spent over $50,000 in furnishing her bedchamber. The carpet—a grand, hand-tied purple Axminster—cost $7,600.

The chairs and other furniture are of solid, carved ivory, with ebony and gold inlay. The toilet fittings are of oriental alabaster and cost some hundreds of pounds.

In the center of the room is a Cochinchina table, inlaid with mother of pearl and worth $750. The bedstead is of brass, inlaid with fine pearls, and at the head is an artificial landscape of crystal, ivory, amber, pearls and other stones.

The bedchambers in the palaces of Turkey are most magnificent and the majority of the royal couches within them are worth small fortunes.

When the German empress once visited the ex-sultan Abdul Hamid a room was placed at her disposal which contained a bedstead constructed entirely of solid silver, artistically chased in many elegant designs. The curtains which surrounded it were of oriental material and design, heavily embroidered with gold.

The Shah of Persia possesses one of the finest bedchambers in existence. Its suite of furniture is manufactured from ivory and inlaid with gold and precious stones. The curtains and curtain hangings are of the finest Brussels net, interwoven with silk.

The chef d'oeuvre of the whole apartment is the bedstead. It is composed entirely of crystal and delicately chased fountains on the sides eject jets of scented water at the will of the occupant. Above the bed is a huge chandelier, which, when lighted, looks like a mass of monster diamonds, all reflecting their brilliance at the same time.

In the French state collection of furniture there is a Masonic bedstead, surmounted by a large canopy. It is of extraordinary height and is ornamented with some of the most delicate carving it is possible for the hand of man to turn out. The French government has had several tempting offers for this beautiful couch, and it refused, some time ago, 15,000 guineas for it.

CAN'T COPYRIGHT CITY NAME

Wilkesbarre Is Denied Right to Exclusive Use—Government Makes Adverse Ruling.

Wilkesbarre, Pa.—This city's efforts to have its name copyrighted has failed, owing to the decision of the registrar of copyrights in Washington that the city has no legal right to the sole and exclusive possession of its name.

The registrar of copyrights says in his decision:

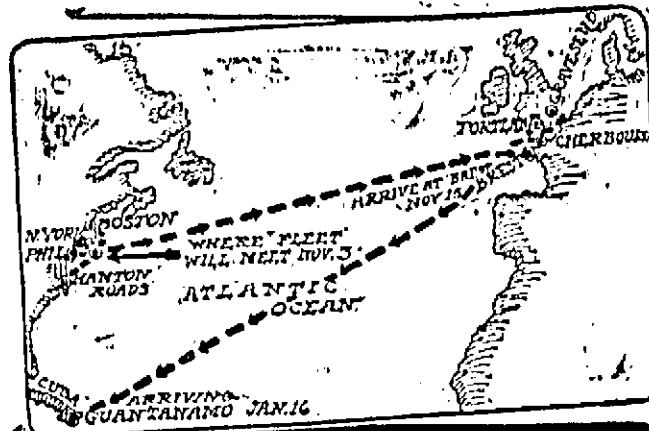

"We beg to say we cannot possibly think of any way in which you could secure for the city of Wilkesbarre the exclusive right to its name by any proceedings under the copyright law. There does not seem to be any principle of law which insures to a city the exclusive right to its name. The post office department has authority to name a post office whatever it sees fit."

For Coronation Plumes.

London.—A movement has been started in South Africa with the object of securing special recognition for ostrich feathers by making the plumes, with the approval of King George and Queen Mary, the prevailing fashion at the coronation. It is suggested that Queen Mary should be requested to accept an ostrich fan as an expression of loyalty from Cape Colony.

UNCLE SAM'S ATLANTIC FLEET

Map showing the proposed tour and stops. Rear Admiral Schreeder, in command of the fleet, and the battleship Connecticut, the flagship from which the tour is directed.

bordering the English channel. At a point in the Atlantic, about 250 miles off the coast, in the latitude of Philadelphia, the four divisions of the fleet made a rendezvous on November 3. This spot is expressed in nautical terms as 60 degrees west longitude, 40 degrees 20 minutes north latitude.

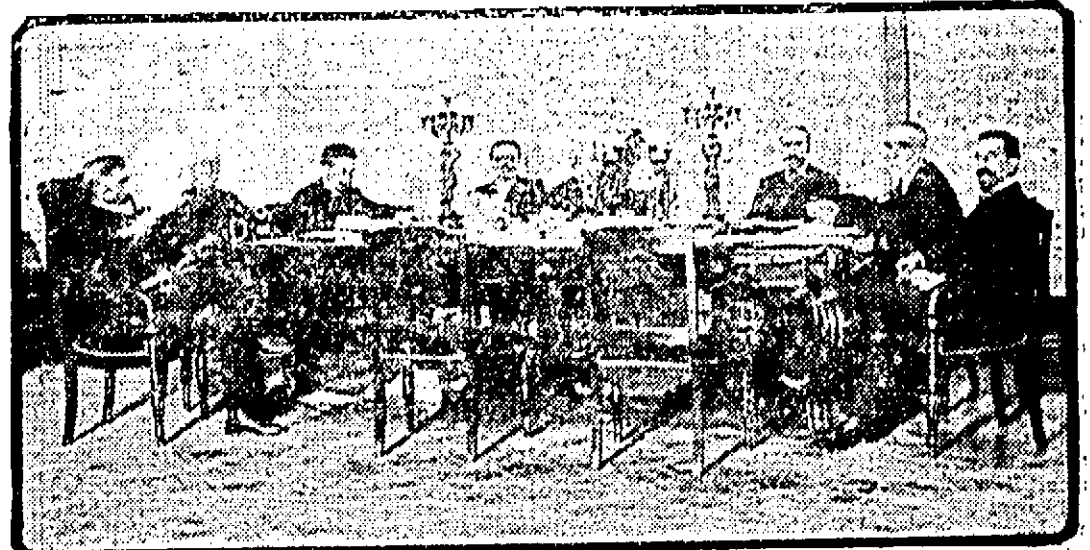

Headed by Rear Admiral Schreeder's flagship, the Connecticut, the combined fleet will cross the Atlantic at a 10-knot speed to the English channel. The fourth division will be the first to quit the fleet. It is due to arrive at Brest, France, on November 15. The following day the first division will drop anchor at Portland harbor, England; the second at Cherbourg, France, and the third at Gravesend, England.

The four divisions will remain at the ports named until December 8. Then the first division goes from Portland to Cherbourg; the second from Cherbourg to Portland; the third from Gravesend to Brest, and the fourth from Brest to Gravesend. Reassembling off the coast of France on December 30, the fleet will head westward for the winter maneuvers, arriving at Guantanamo, Cuba, on January 10.

The supply ship Calcutta is the only auxiliary of the fleet that will visit the English channel. She will sail from New York about December 1, with provisions.

KEEP WATCHES TRUE

IMPORTANT FACTOR IN MAKING TRAVEL SAFE.

Railroad Men's Timepieces Must Be Inspected Once a Week—Slight Variation Might Mean Serious Disaster.

The railroad watch inspector probably has as much to do with making travel safe as any one man in a great railway system's employ. If a trainman's watch is 30 seconds slow or fast it might mean a disaster in these days when the rails are crowded with passenger and freight traffic and meeting points have to be arranged on the smallest possible margins of time.

There is one man who has general charge of keeping the watches of several great systems in order. His territory extends from New York to San Francisco and he has offices in Cleveland, Chicago and on the Pacific coast. He employs a large number of inspectors, who travel constantly over the various railroads with which he has contracts seeing that the watches of the thousands of trainmen are kept running accurately to the second. Every employee's watch has to be inspected at least once a week. If it is as little as 30 seconds out of the way the watch has to be turned in to be repaired and regulated, another being loaned in its place. If this were not done systematically and continually there is no telling what accidents might result. Many years ago five minutes' leeway was allowed for variation in watches. Today no allowance whatever is made. Every watch must be absolutely accurate and correspond with every other watch. In the old days conductors and engineers were allowed to carry any kind of watch and regulated it themselves.

The 18-hour train between New York and Chicago would have been impossible then. With watches of absolute precision and that can be depended upon they are now run on time to the dot, unless something unusual happens. It is the rule that the conductor on any of these fast trains must report if he is 30 seconds late on reaching any of the stops.

There are 37 different kinds of watches for use by railroad men. They are manufactured in eight different establishments that have been approved by the watch inspectors. Each employee has to carry a little card in his pocket which contains a full description of his watch and on which is written the record of each inspection. The men themselves have to buy and pay for their watches. It was found by the Pennsylvania railroad, when they tried the experiment some years ago, that it was not practicable for the company to buy the watches and issue them to their employees. The men were careless, and in some instances pawned the timepieces. The prices at which the watches are sold and the cost of repairs are regulated by contract with the railroad company.

A watch with a filled case and standard movement can be bought for about $40, but there are others that are approved and cost much less. All of them have to be adjusted to temperatures ranging from 80 to 95 degrees, because the balance wheels of brass and steel change with heat and cold. They also are adjusted to five different positions. All standard railroad watches must contain at least 17 jewels; some are made with 19 and some with 21. More than the latter number, the experts say, would be useless. The jewels of a watch are its bearings. They are made of rubies or white sapphires and the holes in them are so small that they cannot be seen with the naked eye.

Watches never were so cheap and so accurate as they are now. This is largely due to the standard which the railroads have established, and while an accurate watch is a good thing for the man who stays at home it is infinitely better for the one who travels.

England's Military Railway. The South-Western is our most important military line. It skirts the Channel, and has more military stations on it than any other. It connects the three great naval stations, Portsmouth, Portland and Plymouth, with the two great camps, and serves as many garrison towns as it does cathedral cities. The road is jointly owned with the Brighton into Portsmouth is the only one in the country that passes through a rampart. And, owing to the concentration of the troops at Southampton, it carries every British soldier that goes or returns on foreign service.—Westminster Gazette.

RETURNS FROM CLIMATIC PERILS OF THE PHILIPPINES. Mrs. William A. Dallam.

Washington, D. C.—Second Lieut. William A. Dallam of the Twelfth United States cavalry has resigned from the service, and the note of his resignation was received here yesterday. He had been in the Philippines for two years, and was on the island of Luzon when he was killed. He was a brilliant soldier, and his death was a great loss to the service. He was married to Mrs. William A. Dallam, who is now in New York.

His frail constitution to all the perils of that climate. Now the lieutenant has resigned because his wife became weakened by tropical fever and the illness caused her to lose her child. He was the young officer's turn to make a sacrifice. Lieut. Dallam and his wife were now in New York.

THE GREATEST MOTHER IN THE WORLD—MRS. JANE MORRIS.

Lexington, Ky.—(Special.)—The greatest mother in the world, perhaps, is Mrs. Jane Morris, residing in Jackson county, near the foothills of the Cumberland mountains, in Kentucky. Mrs. Morris was born and reared in the mountains, has little education and until a few years ago had never been outside of her immediate vicinity, there being to this time no railroad in Jackson county.

Mrs. Morris' claim to greatness lies in the fact that she can boast of a total of 518 descendants, nearly all of whom are living and none of whom ever has been accused of crime.

"My life's motto has been," said the venerable old mother the other day, "the Golden Rule. The duty of a wife is to her home and her country, to bear the burden of motherhood in strict accordance to the laws of nature, and my obedience to the same is why, at the age of 86, I can glory in the fact that out of the great number of my children not one is an inmate of any school of reform, jail, penitentiary or any kind of a reformatory."

Aunt Jane, as she is called, is now very feeble, living with her son near Sand Cap, and her descendants own and occupy most of the land in Jackson county, one son, L. V. Morris, being judge of the county. She is 86 years old and says she expects to live to be a hundred and to see descendants of the fifth generation. Mrs. Morris' husband died twenty years ago, six years after they had celebrated their golden wedding. She never married again, and, remarkable as it may seem, the entire number of descendants are from this one union.

Her most productive child is Hannah Larkes, who had sixteen children and has more than eighty descendants, but Mrs. Morris follows closely with fifteen children, twenty-nine grandchildren and thirteen great-grandchildren.

Of Mrs. Morris' children Lewis had only one child and Bettie died without marrying, while Fannie and Lydia are still living, but never married.

A summary of Mrs. Morris' descendants, as follows, shows probably the most remarkable productive table ever published.

The first column of figures shows the number of grandchildren, the second the great-grandchildren, and the third the great-great-grandchildren:

Her Children	Grandchildren	Great-Grandchildren	Great-Great-Grandchildren
John Morris	10	50	2
Sallie Sparks	15	29	13
Job Morris	14	34	18
William Morris	13	44	5
Hannah Larkes	16	76	8
L. V. Morris	11	34	1
Leah Marcus	12	29	1
Cananda Morris	7	18	1
Mary J. Isaacs	6	11	1
Margaret Johnson	13	11	1
Cynthia M. Peritt	10	11	1
Lewis Morris	1	1	1
Bettie Morris	1	1	1
Fannie Morris	1	1	1
Lydia Morris	1	1	1

Total—15 children...124 326 49

Grand total—518.

Mrs. Morris is said by all who know her to live well up to the Golden Rule she has taken as her life's motto.

DISCOVER SHAKESPERIAN FRAUDS. William J. Neldig.

Madison, Wis.—William J. Neldig of the English department of the University of Wisconsin is the discoverer of the latest Shakesperian frauds. Mr. Neldig has proved that the dates of five quartos of the earliest editions of Shakespeare's works are forged. By a system of measuring the type in the various editions, analogous to the famous Bertillon system of identifying criminals, Mr. Neldig discovered that the 1609 and 1608 quartos were really printed in 1615.

Mr. Neldig's discovery seriously affects the price of these supposedly first editions, as hitherto it has been assumed by scholars that Shakespeare himself might have handled the books.

Mr. Neldig has shown that since they were printed in 1615, three years after the death of the great dramatist, he could have had no personal contact with them. The copy of the "Merchant of Venice," dated 1600, recently sold for $3,000.

The imprint date on the title page of the Shakespeare folios has hitherto been regarded as the strongest proof of the authenticity of the time of publication, but Mr. Neldig's discovery shows that the unscrupulousness of the printers of the time may make the imprint date of little value. As all the work done by Mr. Neldig was completed in this country on copies of the quartos in American libraries, the discovery is one of the most important contributions to Shakesperian criticism in America.

Revelation of Character. A man's character is known by the nature of his amusements.

The Seer's Tomb. In the course of some excavations which have been made among the ruins of a convent church at Salon, in Provence, France, the workmen have come upon an ancient tomb which is believed to be that of Nostradamus, a famous French physician and astrologer. Michel de Notre Dame, to give him his proper name, was born at St. Remi, Provence, in 1503, and after qualifying as a doctor of medicine established himself at Salon, near Aix, in Provence. During the terrible outbreaks of plague in that region he acquired considerable renown for his devotion and skill in treating those stricken with the disease. Afterward he achieved a reputation as a seer, and in 1555 published a book of rhymed prophecies under the title of "The Centuries," and the apparent fulfillment of some of them greatly increased his influence.

Discovering Woman's Age. We wonder what death the man will die, or what tortured life he will be caused to lead, who has just discovered the little "tick" by which a woman's age can be ascertained beyond a doubt—that is to say, while her health is normal. The only instrument required is an ordinary watch. The wrist of the lady whose age is in question is the tell-tale. For when you count her pulse, and it registers 69 beats per minute, you know that she is between twenty and twenty-five years old. During the next five years 71 beats go to the minute, and the "femmo de trente ans" and over is entitled to 70 throbs. It is a pity the man of science who has established these facts, is not more exact when dealing with the women of "fifteen," for, according to rumor and tradition, it is only after she is thirty that a woman begins to leave off having birthdays.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

IN RESPONSE to my request to my readers to tell me about some of the unusual occupations at which they, or any other woman whom they know, are earning their bread and butter, or even a little jam to go with bread and butter already furnished, one girl has written me such a very interesting and mellow letter that I am going to devote the whole column today to quoting it.

She writes as follows:

"While my side line is not absolutely unique, it differs from stereotypical employment in many ways.

"Three years ago, when I was living in Los Angeles, my father gave me two large Belgian rabbits. And, because I am fond of animals, I spent much time with them and gradually added to my stock, later investing in the new and purer breed, New Zealand Red, until at present I keep about three dozen does at work constantly.

"Of course, it is much easier to write the bare facts of the matter than it is to describe the hours I have spent and the finger-nails I have completely ruined building pens. Or the tears I shed when one after another of my promising young rabbit families simply lay down and died. But after a few months' experience, I know the why and wherefore of a rabbit's demise, and it doesn't happen again if I can prevent.

"My work means perhaps two hours a day of work, and many hours of interest and 'fussing,' but I know to a dollar how much I will have at the end of a month to cover and above expenses, and it is no inconsiderable amount for a woman to earn at home.

"Besides the financial side of the work, I have found that a healthy interest in 'live things' and the caring for those helpless, eyeless, little wrigglers, that in six weeks will develop into lively young rabbits, will do away with more troubles than one would imagine. Who could stay morose or sour when they had to scramble wildly over fifty or a hundred small 'fry' in the run, and manage to feed and water them without breaking any little furry necks in the process.

"Then, too, every single rabbit has a personality of its own. I can turn twenty does in together and distinguish every one and return her to her proper pen, while to the stranger there would be no difference among them. "There is a steady demand for market stock that, so far, I have never been able to fill, for I cannot devote my time to the work as I wish I might. But for a woman who could and would work six to eight hours per day at it, there is not only money, but big money waiting.

"With my three dozen does I clear from one to two dollars per day. What could anyone do with fifty?"

Will the young woman who took the time and trouble to contribute this interesting document, please consider herself very much thanked, both by any of my readers who may get a hint from it and by myself.

HINTS FOR THE HOME

By ROSE TERRELL.

Volatility and volatility and corduroy are all high favor for suits, as well as for hats. The only drawback with velvet is its tendency to gather all the dust out of the air. Such suits and hats must be kept well protected from dust or they soon grow shabby with frequent brushing. Before wearing a velvet hat look at it in the sunshine and see if it is free from dust. After a brushing with a soft clothes brush go over it with a clean silk duster and carefully smooth all the remaining flecks away. To dust velvet do not use the same vigorous arm movement that is used in brushing cloth from the same enemy to neatness. Rather take the slower smoothing stroke that an expert housewife uses in sweeping a room where she desires to raise as little dust as possible.

To dust silk gowns or satin use a velvet cloth and smooth it down gently. The strong shaking which some garments will permit may destroy "the hang" of a soft silk garment.

The matter of personal neatness is one of the most difficult to acquire if you have not gained it in youth. The woman who instinctively brushes and repairs her garments after wearing, is either born under a lucky star, or she was well trained in her youth by a mother who believed it spoiled a child to do too much for them.

The "picking up" habit of the loving mothers has much to commend it in the aftermath of habits of carelessness. Each child should have some hooks and drawers that are all its own. They should hang hats and dresses on them. There should be the place for underwear and handkerchiefs and stockings. Each should have her own—or his own—for boys should be trained to habits of neatness as individual brushes and wash rags. If it is impossible to give each child a room to itself then divide the furnishings of the room into individual parts. Give each one some certain duty to perform—and then see that it is done. "This is the hardest part of the work, but the child who forms the habit of earring for its belongings instinctively will call the mother blessed in later years. This, of course, providing if she has been gentle and sweet in her teaching. It is not impossible to keep sweet and still be firm. Look at the best fruit and that will prove itself. When cleaning spots from soiled garments if you use gasoline try just moistening cornmeal with the gasoline, and use it to scrub the spots. It will prevent the unsightly ring which usually disfigures the home cleaned garment.

Teach boys to press their own trousers. If you don't want how, pay some good tailor to come to the house and give the boy lessons. Provide him with the kind of iron and board that will be always ready. Keep it in his room and have a gas attachment so that he can do his work when the notion is still warm. Getting ready to do little pattering jobs is often more trouble than the actual work. Let him be ready all the time and he will develop a care which will surprise you.

Teach girls that a freshly pressed garment has an air which is totally lacking in a crumpled, though clean one.

Girls are more teachable than boys when it comes to matters of dress, therefore it behooves the mother to try and lead her son along gently and by pleasant paths if possible. If he is adverse to frequent bathing—it takes a lot of valuable time—let him join a gymnasium class. He will get his shower so regularly that he will soon be unable to get out without it. Give him a box and socks to match for Christmas or birthday gifts. See that his undergarments are always in good repair. Keep a general eye on his room, without disturbing some precious piece of clutter, and give it the touch without which a room devoted to masculine belongings is utterly forelorn.

Do not fear you will make him too nice. He will still take to wholesome dirt as a duck to water—but see that it is wholesome dirt and not lack of understanding of the right kind of neatness.

SELF MADE.

By MARY RUSSELL.

The self-made man or woman is spoken of with a certain awe and admiration. They are the people who have surmounted almost insurmountable difficulties. To reach the heights. Often indeed the results are crude and unpolished. Many a one makes his boast that he is self-made when he should be anxious to place the blame on anyone better at making a showing than men and they are not so liable to boast that they are self-made. Women make up the bulk of our students who are working their way through college and school. They are the very body of most working forces, but we hear very little of self-made women. Of course, to be self-made, from the usual point of view, is to have made success or—save the mark—wealth! That is the type line by which we, as a rule, measure men and women.

It is not the little garment worker who has come to a decent self-respect, through hard trials and many difficulties, just as much self-made; is not the man who, out of very meager material and very difficult conditions, still makes a clean, honest faithful husband and father. Something of a self-made man? There are many of those but they do not count in the census of self-made.

After all, are we not all self-made in the essentials? I, in my walk of life, and you in yours, have either made or married the material given into our hands. You have had a help

Woman's World

The Love Story and Good Deeds of the Former Queen of Portugal.

THE FORMER QUEEN OF PORTUGAL.

The last few years have been unhappy ones indeed for the lovely and good Amelie, the former queen of Portugal. As every one knows, her husband, King Carlos, and the crown prince were assassinated while she was driving with them to the streets of Lisbon in 1908. The explosion recently of her son, King Manuel, and the royal family from Portugal when the monarchial government was replaced by that of a republic is another bitter blow to this much tried woman.

Queen Amelie, the daughter of the Comte de Paris, was brought up in England in the utmost simplicity. Royal unions are not always love matches, but the marriage of King Carlos and Queen Amelie was an exception. There is a pretty story about this royal courtship. It seems that then Duke of Braganza was distinctly difficult to please in the choice of a wife. One day a portrait of Princess Amelie d'Orleans was placed in his way as if by accident, and the duke was immediately fascinated. Personal acquaintance increased the attraction, and eventually the young couple were married at Lisbon in 1886. The marriage proved a happy one, for the royal pair were as devoted to each other on the day of the king's death as in the first years of their union.

Until recently Queen Amelie was much beloved by the people of her adopted country. She studied medicine so as to understand hospital work and general nursing and was untiring in her efforts to improve the public health. Her higher education of women enlisted her warmest support, and she was never happier than when going about incognito among the poor of Lisbon.

Queen Amelie was considered the best governed of royal women, and she is a born milliner. In the palace there was a room set apart where hats and bonnets were continually in course of construction, and thereby hangs a pathetic story. Once while out driving in the streets of Lisbon she observed a large crowd surrounding some object. The queen sent the footman to see what was the matter, and when he reported that a young woman had fainted she immediately left her carriage and had the unconscious girl taken to a neighboring shop and personally attended her professionally. The queen had the young woman removed to her own home, had inquiries made about her and learned the poor girl's history. She was a milliner and, having failed to get employment, had ventured to undertake work on her own account for the support of herself and her invalid mother, but with so little success that she was nearly starved.

Queen Amelie sent at once some necessities and commanded the girl's presence at the palace. Here she received her in the workroom and handed the poor milliner three bonnets of her own creation. "Take these as models, call them 'bonnets Amelie' and tell your customers they are made after the queen's own fashioning." Her majesty wore herself one of the identical bonnets and commanded her ladies to do likewise. Within two months the once starving girl could take larger premises and today is herself an employer of over 200 women.

GOAT'S MILK FOR INFANTS.

Goat's milk is preferable for the infant to cow's, and in cases in which life may be in danger from the use of cow's milk in hot weather, a resort to goat's milk will show an immediate improvement. In Cuba infants are fed directly from the goat, which is easily taught to climb upon a table and stand perfectly still. A goat will supply enough milk for a small family. It can be supported on the grass from an ordinary city lot during the summer, and a bale of hay in the winter. "Go to the hills and drink goat's milk," was the celebrated prescription for consumption by Hippocrates, the father of medicine.

"YOU'LL SUCCEED IN JANESVILLE."

Yes, all arguments to the contrary, Jameville is GOING AHEAD—she is to have one new bridge and an old eye-sore rebuilt into a substantial monument to the progressive spirit of 1910.

Nearly 1,500 BOOSTERS made themselves evident at this election by voting on this bridge question—those who voted "No" had reasons, but we think the "Yes" voters' reasons were the better ones.

It has a damper top and a cool handle. Indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font. The filler-cap does not need to be screwed down; it is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain, and cannot get lost. The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, because of a new device in construction, and consequently, it can always be easily unscrewed in an instant for reworking. BREAKS UP A COLD AND CURES GRIPPE.

The Most Severe Cold and Grippe Sufferer Will Be Relieved in Just a Few Hours.

You can surely and quickly break up the most severe cold either in head, chest, back, stomach or limbs, by taking a dose of Pape's Cold Compound every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken.

It promptly relieves the most insupportable neuralgia, pain, headache, dizziness, heart and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, sore throat, mucous catarrhal discharges, running of the nose, soreness, stiffness and rheumatic twinges.

Take this harmless Compound as directed, without interference with your usual duties and with the knowledge that there is no other medicine, made anywhere else in the world, which will cure your cold or grippe misery as promptly and without any other assistance or bad after-effects as a 25 cent package of Pape's Cold Compound, which any druggist in the world can supply.

Pape's Cold Compound is the result of three years' research at a cost of more than fifty thousand dollars, and contains no quinine, which we have conclusively demonstrated is not effective in the treatment of colds or grippe.

This is another link in the long chain of evidence to prove the reliability of this standard medicine for women.

How to Have the Best Cough Syrup and Save $2, by Making it at Home.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take one pint of granulated sugar, add ½ pint of warm water, and stir about 2 minutes, you have as good syrup as money could buy.

If you will then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much cough syrup as you could buy ready-made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly.

And you will find it the best cough syrup you ever used—even in whooping cough. You can feel it take hold—usually stops the most severe cough in 24 hours. It is just laxative enough, has a good tonic effect and taste is pleasant. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

It is a splendid remedy, too, for hemorrhoids, asthma, chest pains, etc. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in gallicol and all the healing pine elements. No other preparation will work in this formula.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup is now used and prized in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has often been imitated but never successfully.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Thirty-Six Trial Orders In Five Weeks

During the past five weeks we have sold thirty-six new customers each a trial order of

Case's Molasses Feed

We sold this feed upon the following guarantee. Four quarts of this feed will do more to keep a horse in good condition than six quarts of oats. Therefore it is a cheaper feed than oats. This feed is not as "heating" as corn and a few weeks of good, steady diet of this feed will make every horse you own as hard as rock and capable of doing more work than ever before.

This feed will positively build up run-down horses or stock of any kind and put them in the pink of condition. In addition, in addition to the above CASE'S MOLASSES FEED is guaranteed to contain more muscle building elements and less waste than any other feed on the market—and if you don't find it exactly as guaranteed, we will refund the money.

The above guarantee was given with each and every one of the thirty-six trial orders and the feed was put to the most severe tests imaginable, on run down stock of all kinds.

Not One of the Thirty-Six Has Asked For His Money Back but, on the contrary, most of them have re-ordered—and with every re-order comes the statement that it is positively "the best feed ever used."

Think of it—over four hundred Rock County farmers are using it and not a single case of dissatisfaction. Horses doing the heaviest teaming and delivery work here in Janesville are fed on it and are always in good condition.

If your horses are not in the best of condition, give this feed a trial. "If you don't say its the best feed you ever used your money will be returned."

Case's Molasses Feed is NOT AN EXPENSE BUT IT IS A POSITIVE SAVING to feed it BECAUSE THE INCREASED PROFITS WILL PAY FOR THE SMALL OUTLAY MANY TIMES OVER.

Don't wait till the feed bin is empty—mail or phone for a trial order today.

FLOATING ISLAND FOUND

Queer Discovery Made by the Crew of the Dark Atlas in the Pacific Ocean.

The crew of the bark Atlas, which arrived in Seattle recently after rounding the Horn from Philadelphia, reports a queer discovery for one day of the 138 of her voyage. She had been out many days without seeing anything—only three ships were seen on the entire trip—when one morning in the Pacific the lookout reported that he had sighted land off the port bow where no land was supposed to be. Nor could any be found on the charts.

It seemed low in the water, but too much like the real thing to be a mirage, so the captain ran toward it. It proved to be land, right enough; an island covered with trees and thick low underbrush. Birds and a few monkeys were seen upon it, but no other signs of life. These precluded the possibility of the island being of volcanic origin, and leads the captain to claim it as a floating island. He believes that it was washed out to sea from delta of the Rio de la Plata or the Negro, and that the undergrowth was so thick that its roots held the whole together.

As he saw two trees tumble into the water from the island's edge before he sailed away his theory appears to be somewhat substantiated.

PAYING FOR ANCIENT CRIME

Blood Tax Still Exacted From Bearn Shepherds for Murder of 700 Years Ago.

Seven hundred years ago some shepherds of the valley of Roncal, in Navarre, were murdered by shepherds of the valley of Duraton, in the Pyrenees. It would have been difficult to bring the murderers individually to justice, and the Spaniards were preparing to make war upon the valley from which the French murderers had come, when the French villages proposed that peace be maintained at the price of a yearly tax or tribute, to endure for all time, and this proposition was accepted.

The payment of this blood tax—originally three white mares, but later three cows of a particular breed and color—has been made ever since, the custom (it is nothing more) having survived even the great wars in which both France and Spain have engaged, and the storm of the French revolution.

Yearly the representative men of the two valleys meet on the frontier, at a certain stone remote from any town, and go through the ceremony of presenting and receiving the cattle. The order of procedure, which is elaborate and impressive, is fixed by a document bearing the date 1375, though the tax was paid a hundred years prior to that time. The records of each yearly meeting and payment are duly attested and deposited in the archives of Roncalais.

Uses of Transfers.

During the evening rush hours two men were riding uptown together in a Broadway car, says the New York Sun. One man paid the fares. Two transfers, he demanded.

"We got off at the Astor place and can't use them."

"I know that," replied the man who had paid the fares, "but I always ask for a transfer simply as a matter of precaution, as a receipt."
